THE MEDICAL SENSATION OF THE AGE--THE DISCOVERY OF PE-RU-NA

BY DR. S. B. HARTMAN.

Other Remedies Failed--Pe-ru-na Cured.

Mrs. Chas. Steinecke, Stoughton, Wis., writes:
"My experience with Peruna has been most pleasing. By carelessly leaving a heated tall room I got thoroughly chilled and caught a heavy cold which settled on my lungs. I wore a protector, took many remedies for cold without success. With my other troubles I had catarrh of the head. Peruna was recommended to me and I bought a bottle and soon began to improve. I kept on taking it and it cured me from all my troubles. I am pleased to testify to its merits."

The World's Greatest Medicine Factory.

The rapid growth of the Peruna Medicine Company is as phenomenal in the business world as the universal popularity of their famous remedy, Peruna. The plant covers a number of acres, and employs several hundred people. No other medicine firm in the world reaches anything like the volume of business done by Dr. Hartman's firm. Although Peruna is a proprietary medicine, the details of its compounding are no secret and nothing gives Dr. Hartman greater pleasure than to show the many friends of Peruna all the essential processes by which Peruna is made.

A Doctor's Prescription.

For years Dr. Hartman used Peruna in his private practice as a regular prescription. He had no thought of manufacturing it or advertising it as a proprietary medicine until there was a demand made upon him by his many friends, who clamored for the original prescription.

Forty Thousand Patients.

Dr. Hartman estimates that he must have prescribed Peruna for over forty thousand patients before it was advertised as a proprietary medicine.

Cured in Four Weeks of Severe Cough on Lungs.

Miss Josie Schaezel, R. R. No. 1, Appleton, Wis., writes:
"I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs in very short order and it was not long until it developed into a serious case of catarrh. Every morning I would raise a lot of phlegm, which was very disagreeable. My digestion was poor and my lungs sore."

"After a few doses of Peruna, I began to mend, and felt that if I kept on taking it, it would not be long until I would be well. I was right, for in four weeks I was well again."

"I think Peruna is a grand medicine, and wish to add my testimony to the many others you have."--Josie Schaezel.

Pe-ru-na Removes the Cause of Catarrh.
Peruna has no bad effects upon the system and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used off and on for twenty years.

Given Up By Doctors--Cured By Pe-ru-na.

Miss Margaret Fahey, 49 Adams street, Troy, N. Y., writes:
"We have used Peruna in our family for years and I am very pleased to say that it cured me of catarrh of the lungs when the doctors gave up all hope of my recovery."
"I used Peruna for six months and at the end of that time my cough had disappeared, my appetite was much better and I had gained ten pounds and looked the picture of health."
"I am in perfect health, now, and feel that Peruna not only cures catarrh, but builds up the system, and is therefore a grand medicine."--Margaret Fahey.

Pe-ru-na's Popularity.

Peruna is not like so many other remedies that pass away as soon as the first few bottles are used. The longer Peruna is used in any community, the more popular it becomes.

Pe-ru-na Actually Cures.

The reason why Peruna has become a standard catarrh remedy the world over is simply because it cures catarrh.

This explains why Peruna has become so popular. It cures catarrh. This is an amply sufficient reason why it should become popular.

Catarrh is almost universal. Catarrh is difficult to cure. The doctors do not care to treat cases of catarrh at all. It therefore follows that when a remedy is devised that can be used in the home at a moderate cost, such a remedy should inevitably become popular.

Entirely Cured By Several Bottles of Pe-ru-na.

Miss Ella M. Miller, one of Washington's society girls, writes from 140 F street, N. E., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"With pleasure I recommend your medicine for catarrh of the head. Having taken several bottles, I find myself entirely cured. I cannot praise Peruna too highly."--Ella M. Miller.

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

There are a great many catarrh cures in the world. The most of them are local applications. Few of them are to be used internally.

Unfortunately a large number of these catarrh remedies, especially the ones prescribed by the doctors, contain narcotics of some sort. Cocaine, opium, whisky, and other narcotics are used.

These remedies give temporary relief. The patient thinks he is better right away. In a few weeks, however, he discovers his mistake. Not only is his catarrh no better, but he has acquired the habit of using some narcotic. This happens in a multitude of cases.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind.

Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit.

GHOSTS AND SPECTRES.

How a Poll Parrot Frightened his Owner's Guest Almost Out of Her Senses.

A starless night, a drizzling rain, the hour twelve, and alone in a strange room; conditions fit to bring ghosts and spectres from their sheltered hiding. It is my personal experience that I am going to relate, and it occurred right here in Ohio county. I was spending the night with a friend, who now holds high official position in the county, and having some matters of importance to talk over with my host he remained in my room until midnight. After he had bid me a good-night, I observed, with some anxiety, that the oil in my lamp was almost burned out. I say with some anxiety, not because I was afraid of the dark, even of a night like that, but because for years I had slept with a lamp burning every night, and the unaccustomed darkness was in some way depressing. In the absence of the light to which I had been so long accustomed I could not readily go to sleep and turned from side to side until a knock in an adjoining room, struck me.

One o'clock is the hour of hours when a strange voice in one's room sounds ghost-like, and the hour of hours when one would least expect to be told to get out of the house of a friend but that was exactly what I heard. I raised my head from the pillow and listened. A voice hoarse, harsh and imperative said "Get out!" The voice came from within the room; there could be no mistaking that. I had seen my host lock the front door and bolt down the windows, and he was sleeping in an adjoining room into which opened the only other door leading from mine. I was puzzled; to put it plainly I was scared. I lacked arms for defense and pride restrained me from calling my host. Having fortunately some matches in my vest pocket, I struck a light and peered cautiously into every nick and corner of the room, moving the heavy lace curtains, and looking carefully under the bed. But I had no sooner put out the match and returned to my bed than the hoarse voice, as if impatient of disobedience, fairly shouted "Get out!" I got out; at least out of the bed. I hesitated whether it would make me appear the more ridiculous to get out of the house or call my host.

While I was fumbling in my pocket for another match the apparently ownerless voice again shrieked "Get out! get out!" I struck a match and looked about the room of which it was plain that I was the sole occupant. I applied the match to the lamp, which still contained a little oil, and waited to see if the ghost would talk while the light burned, determined if it did not do so to call for more oil before the lamp was entirely exhausted. I waited with impatience and listened with attention, but my heart throbs were the only sounds to break the awful stillness. For the second time in my life I was at the point of believing that after all ghosts were something more than dreams, just when my lamp was at the failing point and I was ready to yell fire, flood, murder, to break the spell I chanced to discover pretty poll in her cage high upon the wall. The pesky thing had held her peace when the light was burning and I had not discovered its presence before.

Death at Mt. Vernon.

On Thursday, April 20, at 4:30 o'clock the angel of death visited our community and claimed for its own our dear and loving friend, Miss Emma Morris. She was converted, baptized and joined the M. E. church at Massadonia in 1899 and has since lived a faithful and consistent member. Miss Emma has been bedfast about seven weeks with that dreaded and unavoidable disease, consumption. She was willing and prepared to die. She prayed and asked others to pray, that she might die easy and know a while before time came to die. And both were granted.

She requested that Rev. J. F. Baker conduct exercises at the grave. He gave a very brief and interesting talk. Her remains were laid to rest in the Axton burying ground beside a father, mother, a sister and two brothers to await the resurrection of the saints.

CAPT. PAUL JONES.

American Naval Hero Who Has Been Dead 100 Years.

Body Found and is in Remarkable State of Preservation---Color of Hair Discernable.

The long and earnest quest of General Horace Porter, American ambassador to France, for the body of John Paul Jones, the hero of America's early navy, which was known to have been buried in an obscure Parisian cemetery, has at last been rewarded. The body of Jones has been identified beyond peradventure and will be brought to the United States for fitting interment with the honors due the hero's distinguished service to his country, after a lapse of 100 years since his death.

In the excavation of the site formerly used as a cemetery the search was for a leaden casket, as it was known that the body of Jones was thus interred. Finally four leaden caskets which gave promise of containing the body of the admiral were unearthed. Three of them bore plates designating the names of the deceased. The fourth showed superior solidity of workmanship. No plate was found on this casket.

The body was found to be well preserved owing to its being immersed in alcohol. It was wrapped in a sheet with a packing of straw and hay.

The coffin was taken to the medical school where Doctors Capitan and Papillart, distinguished professors of the school of anthropology and recognized authorities on such investigations, were charged with making a thorough examination for the purpose of identification. After the most minute examination the following facts were fully substantiated:

Length of the body five feet seven inches; the admiral's exact height.

Size and shape of head were with several peculiarities identical with the head of the admiral.

Hair, dark brown, the same as the admiral's; in places slightly grey, indicating a person of his age, forty-five years. The hair is long, reaching below the shoulders, and is combed back and gathered in a clasp at the back of the neck.

The face is clean shaven, all corresponding exactly with the descriptions, portraits and busts of the admiral.

The linen is in good condition. One article bears an initial, either "J" or an inverted "P." The body was carefully packed. The limbs were wrapped in tinfoil, presumably for sea transportation, as indicated in a letter of the admiral's nearest friend and palibearer of his funeral, Colonel Blackden, who said:

"His body was put in a leaden coffin so that in case the United States which he had so essentially served should claim his remains, they might be more easily removed."

Finding that all the internal organs were singularly well preserved, the doctors made an autopsy which showed distinct proofs of the disease from which the admiral is known to have died. The identification was pronounced complete in every particular.

Care has been taken to keep the body in its present state of preservation. It will be transported to the United States and given a sepulchre fitting to the body of the illustrious sailor whose place of burial had so long remained a mystery.

STRANGE ROMANCE.

Ring Taken by Turtle Forty Years Ago Returned and Marriage Ensues.

[Battle Creek (Mich.) Cor. Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

The marriage to-night in Augusta of Miss Freda Olmstead and John Martin is the culmination of a romance which had its birth 40 years ago and was rudely broken by an innocent mud turtle. This same animal is now the cause of their beings brought together again.

In 1865 John Martin was employed in assisting in the construction of the Grand Trunk Railroad. He made his headquarters in Galesburg and Augusta, and in the latter place met Miss Freda Olmstead, then a handsome young woman noted as one of the belles of that section.

Martin was a strapping young fellow with a liberal education received in Germany, where he was born. The two young people's acquaintance soon ripened into love and they became betrothed.

During the absence of Martin on one of his trips along the line Miss Olmstead one afternoon accepted an invitation from an old friend to enjoy a boat ride on one of the little lakes near Augusta. While they were out a turtle was captured and in a spirit of fun Miss Olmstead took off her engagement ring and placed it around the neck of the turtle.

In some manner the turtle escaped and dropped off into the water of the lake, taking with it the ring. Although frantic efforts were made to recapture it, they proved fruitless.

When Martin returned home he was told of the incident and became enraged and charged Miss Olmstead with being faithless. All efforts on her part to convince him that such was not the case proved unavailing and resigning his position he returned to Germany, where he has since remained, managing the estate since left to him by the death of his father.

Early this spring while fishing in the Lake a party captured a turtle, and noticing something around his neck found upon examination that it was a ring, which proved to be that placed there 40 years ago by Miss Olmstead.

Miss Olmstead, although forsaken by her lover in his jealous rage, had never married, and the ring was at once placed on her finger. She at once took steps to communicate with Martin, who had himself remained single, and he took the first steamer for this country.

Mr. Martin expects to remain in this country after making a return trip to Germany to settle up his business matters there, on which trip he will be accompanied by his bride.

BOY STOLE STEAMBOAT

And Started Down the Missouri River to New Orleans.

[Sioux City (Iowa) Cor. New York World.]

Roy Fero, alias "Ponca Bill," has been taken to the penitentiary at Sioux Falls, to serve a term for stealing a Missouri steamboat and absconding with it. Though the crime was committed some nine years ago, Fero is just now serving his sentence for it.

It was in the fall of 1896 that Ponca Bill, then a boy, found an inviting stern-wheel boat moored at Nebaska City, Neb., where it had been doing service for the Argo Starch works, of that town. Fero had just started out to see the country. He was making his way down the Missouri at that time. He conceived the idea of stealing the boat and riding luxuriously to New Orleans. He knew little about steamers, but a whole lot about the river and he thought it would be child's play to travel in that fashion. It was well on toward morning when he boarded the steamer at Nebraska City. He found the fires banked and the two men in charge asleep near the boilers.

Rousing the men he terrified them into doing his will, and then conciliated them by making big promises for the trip. They fell in with his scheme and in a half hour the stern-wheel was gliding swiftly down stream on the rapid current.

It was not until morning that the theft of the boat was discovered. The officials of the Argo Starch Works were amazed. No such thing had ever been heard of. A report came from Hamburg that a steamer had passed that town, going South, during the night.

Accordingly the town authorities fired up a small packet lying at the dock and started in pursuit. Down the winding river the packet dashed at full speed, steam whistling from safety valves. Ten miles downstream the runaway boat was sighted, her wheel to rest, floating lazily with the river. But "Ponca Bill" espied the pursuer, and long before the packet could come up the paddles of the bigger steamer were churning the water, and in a short time it had vanished around a bend.

Late that day one pirate, having apparently distanced his pursuers, steered into the harbor at Brownsville. But the officers at Nebraska City had taken the precaution of telephoning, and as a result Fero was arrested the minute he stepped on shore.

The lad was sent to a reform school, being under age, on formal charge of grand larceny, in particular, kidnapping a Missouri River steamboat. The boy was attacked by sickness, real or feigned, and gained access to the hospital room. One summer afternoon in 1897, when all were out to get fresh air, "Ponca Bill" slipped down to the room of the bookkeeper, John Brandt, now Assistant County Treasurer of Douglas county. He helped himself to Mrs. Brandt's wardrobe, attired himself in one of Mrs. Brandt's summer gowns, took a white parasol and went out for a walk.

At a little bridge west of the school he sat reading for a hour and then walked to West Kerney Station where he took a Union Pacific train for North Platte. But his devotion to liquor soon uncovered the description, with the result that he was escorted back on the Reform School in great humiliation.

He subsequently made another daring midnight escape, and was never caught until last week. A store in Watertown was robbed, and when the officers looked up the record of the arrested burglar they found him to be "Ponca Bill." So he was sent to the penitentiary, being of age, to serve out his term for the theft of a steamboat.

A Dear Friend's Deduction.

"The most ridiculous thing happened to-day," said the girl who had been out in her new Easter bonnet. "There was a man on the corner near a big trench they were digging for a sewer or something; and the man kept staring at me all the time as I neared him, and what do you think? He gazed at me so steadily that he did not see the trench and fell into it."

"How odd!" exclaimed the girl who had no new Easter bonnet. Did you look at him, too?" "Well—of course I couldn't help just glancing at him." "Maybe he jumped into the trench."

PRICELESS JEWELS.

Belonging To the Rajahs of India Are the Envy of the World.

(Detroit Tribune.)

Some things there are in this world the potential American dollar cannot buy and which even the influence of European royalty is powerless to win. Among them are the priceless sets of jewels belonging to the Rajahs of India. Many of these Princes of the East have sets of gems which represent a value unheard of outside the Orient and beside which the most famous collections of the crowned heads of Europe or of the families of our American millionaires sink into insignificance.

It is not likely that a white man will ever wear these treasures unless they come to him as the spoils of war. It is against the most sacred traditions of the Rajahs to part with their family heirlooms. Fabulous prices have been offered them for single jewels or ornaments out of their vast supplies. But gold has no power to tempt them where their jewels are concerned.

The pearls and diamonds belonging to the Rajah of Dholpur rank first among all these costly collections. They form the most valuable set of jewels in existence. One million dollars was offered to the Rajah for the single string of large pearls about his neck. The offer was refused. Each of these pearls is said to be absolutely without flaw, of perfect purity and luster.

Every jewel in the 12 great ropes of pearls hanging down from the neck is worth a small fortune in itself. Those in the four ropes across the left shoulders, though small in comparison with their companions, are really of good size and great value. Diamonds are interspersed with pearls in the incrustations of the helmet, which is literally covered with gems. It is impossible to even approximate the total value of this wonderful heirloom of the Rajahs of Dholpur. It is priceless.

Far less showy, but scarcely inferior in value, is the family inheritance of the Rajah of Gwalior. His is a wealth of emeralds. The three bands of immense stones which, interspersed with numerous smaller ones, form a broad collar over the chest and shoulders, are native cut. Nor will their owner consider the suggestion that they be recut with modern skill and methods. What they might gain in brilliancy by the operation would be more than offset, in his mind, by what they would lose in size. The value of each of the large stones is about $50,000.

The strips of gold embroidery upon the robes of this Indian Prince are set with many emeralds of a smaller size. The epaulets, which hang from the shoulders down over the arms, are incrustated with extraordinarily large stones surrounded with pearls.

The collar—or one might almost call it cape—worn by the Rajah of Baroda is a mass of diamonds and various precious stones, combined in rich and wonderful confusion. The color and brilliancy of this ornament can better be imagined than described. The lighter stones are set off by borders of the darker emeralds, those forming a fringe around the lower edge being of immense size and value. Scarcely less beautiful is the tassel of pearls which hangs from the left side of this Rajah's turban. Each string in this tassel represents a fortune. In each the pearls have been carefully graded as to size and each is tipped with a pompon of silk. The cap of jewels which covers the Rajah's silk turban is a mass of various gems to match his collar. The edge is formed of diamond pendants.

Five great ropes of pearls, priceless in value, constitute the chief treasure of the Rajah of Nizam. A single pearl from these might well make its owner an object of envy. Among the pearls, here and there, are strung other gems, the better to display their beauty. After his pearls the Rajah prizes most the nine large diamonds which hang from his gold coronet. That in the center particularly is of great size and beauty.

Particularly odd and effective is the use to which the Rajah of Purnah has put the thousands of pearls gathered by generations of his

HOW TO WIN A HUSBAND.

Woman's sphere in this 20th century is not limited any more than man's. She can carry almost any business position or profession, and yet the popular view of womanhood is that she best fits the position of wife and mother and head of the household. Every girl should know her heart and also know that her womanly system is equal to the strain of marriage, if a girl is nervous and irritable ten chances to one it is due to some trouble peculiar to womanhood.

Cupid has no place in a girl's heart if she is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down, worn out for no reason that she can think of. The weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes are only symptoms. Go to the source of the trouble and correct the irregularity. Stop the drains on the womanly system and the other symptoms will disappear. This can be done easily and intelligently. So sure of it is the World's Dispensary Medical Association, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that they offer $500 reward for women who cannot be cured of leucorrhea, female weakness, profluvium or falling of the womb. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

"After confinement I gained no strength," writes Mrs. A. Davis, of Sweetwater, Ala. "Even when my baby was a month old I could hardly do any work. I don't know what to call the disease. I had a weak feeling in the pit of my stomach, felt miserable all over. I was sick three months and a lady friend told me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as it had done her so much good. I did so, and after taking three bottles was cured. This was about one year ago and I have had no return of the disease. Am very thankful for the remedy. I praise your 'Favorite Prescription' enough. It is a wonderful medicine for women." Dr. Pierce's Pills are gently laxative.

(Denver Republican.)

Three Indian reservations in Montana, Wyoming and Utah are slated for opening before the fall of 1906. A young man who gets a claim on either of these reservation is independent for life. There are no such opportunities for land getting in the East, where every foot of ground has been under private ownership for years, and where land is held at a high valuation. The young man in the East finds his opportunities confined to those of business, and even in this there is much more competition to meet than in the West, where the influx of a new population makes new opportunities. From the present outlook the next ten years will be the most prosperous and progressive decade the West has ever known. Fortunate will be the Eastern young men who are wise enough to take Horace Greeley's advice at this day and to grow up with the growing country.

Full of Tragic Meaning

Are these lines from J. H. Simmons, of Casey, La. Think what might have resulted from his horrible cough if he had not taken the medicine about which he writes: "I had a fearful cough, that disturbed my night's rest. I tried everything, but nothing would relieve it, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which completely cured me." Instantly relieves and permanently cures all throat and lung diseases; prevents grip and pneumonia. At Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro., druggists; guaranteed; 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

SPARROWS ON A SPREE.

Lady Saturated Wheat With Whisky and Fed it to the Birds.

(Hagerstown (Md.) Mail.)

A lady residing in Hagerstown, Md., has a large martin box on the end of the house, and the sparrows have taken possession and held it all winter. Evidently they had come to regard their title as perfect, for when the martins were being expected a man climbed a ladder and cleaned their nests out, finding the boxes filled with twigs and feathers. They raised a terrific appeal and lined the fence near by in excited protest. They went back and began rebuilding, having evidently come to the conclusion the man was only a wondering mischance. The martins came and found them build, and where disgusted, but they did not fight, being only two advance couriers. They went back and reported what they had found to the slow armies coming north.

The lady, failing to disperse the sparrows, by a happy inspiration thought to slay them. So she soaked wheat in whisky for two days and then sprinkled the fence and grass near the box with the loaded wheat. The sparrows pounced on the grain and appeared to find it hilariously appetizing. They simply fell over one another for it.

Four martins arrived and found the telegraph wires and fence and box perches in possession of maudlin gangs of debauched sparrows, who chased them in riotous abandon from roof to roof and wire to wire. The martins were worse than annoyed—they were simply astounded. They retreated and the cackling sparrows tumbled to the grass to take another nip of the marvelous wheat the juicy fragrance, and they kept it up until they could find no more. Then they flew to the box and went to sleep.

The lady who acted upon the prescription thinks the adviser made some error about the ingredients.

Queer Lot of Names.

(Paoli.)

Miss Death was brought to the German Hospital in Philadelphia to be operated upon for appendicitis. She was a daughter, she said of an undertaker.

The Surgeon's name who was chosen to perform the operation was Dye—Dr. Frank Hackett Dye.

When the operation was over Miss Death was placed in charge of two nurses.

Miss Payne is the day nurse, Miss Grone is the night nurse. The patient recovered rapidly, and in a short time bade good-by to Dr. Dye, Miss Payne and Miss Grone.

Throat Coughs

A tickling in the throat; hoarseness at times; a deep breath irritates it;—these are features of a throat cough. They're very deceptive and a cough mixture won't cure them. You want something that will heal the inflamed membranes, enrich the blood and tone up the system . . .

Scott's Emulsion

is just such a remedy. It has wonderful healing and nourishing power. Removes the cause of the cough and the whole system is given new strength and vigor . . .

GREAT INVENTION.

Gun That Shoots a Liquid That Will Stop Runaway Horses.

Prof. Treawell Merritt gave an exhibition here recently of his invention for stopping runaway horses and soon sold 18 of the machines at $3 each, says a Lesure Minnesota Correspondent to the St. Paul Dispatch.

It consists of a spring gun which is fastened to the front part of the wagon or buggy, in easy reach of the hand, and in case the horse or horses start to run, the gun is seized, drawn from its water and dust proof holder, and, pointing it at the runaway animal or animals, the driver discharges rapidly from the gun a number of pointed darts which prick the skin of the horses and instantly paralyze their muscles with a drug that acts very quickly, but not at all permanently, and does not injure the horses at all.

The exhibition given by the professor was very interesting. He borrowed a vicious, runaway horse from Peter Wedgewood and hitched it to a buggy, and then, seating himself in the buggy, with a gun in place, he whipped the horse into a run on Main street and then threw the line out on the ground. The horse is a large, powerful animal, and run with terrific speed for a hundred feet or more. Then the professor reached forward, took up the gun and shot two little darts into the horse, which staggered forward a few steps and the stopped, standing upright but with muscles relax and head drooping. It was about ten minutes before he recovered, and then he was as wild and vicious as ever.

Prof Merritt gives with each machine a facsimile permit from the Humane Society for their use, and his invention is certain to prove of great benefit to the human race.

Henry Trottwain and Orlando Shadbolt each bought a gun, and, when they were going home, started in to have a race. Their respective wives seized the guns and shot the horses with the darts, and the race had to be postponed for a time.

An Absent-Minded Man.

(Colorado Springs Dispatch)

While holding his watch in one hand, endeavoring to ascertain the time, and a sandwich in the other hand, James Gould, of Colorado City, was approached by a stranger who asked for a dime with which to get something to eat. Intending to give the stranger the sandwich, Gould absentmindedly gave him the watch, which was speedily accepted.

Gould talked with a friend for ten minutes before discovering his loss, by which time the stranger had disappeared. The watch was recovered next morning in a saloon, where the thirsty stranger had pawned it for drinks.

THE growth of Hartford continues to be steady and sure. There is no fluctuation in the price of real estate but a constant appreciation in its value. The ice plant, with a capacity of five tons, will be in operation in a few days. The electric plant, in a short time, will transform the night into day, and every business house will shine at night with a glamour of dazzling brilliancy. These two recent industries will add very materially to the comfort and well-being of the citizens. There is yet room for other enterprises here. Hartford has always been an inviting and safe field for investments and it is without an equal as a residence town. And ere long do we propose that it will be possible to step aboard an electric car and reach the I. C. at convenient point.

Are Not Private Property.

Some of our rural readers will be surprised to learn a recent decision reached by the post-office department in regard to the rural route mail boxes. It has been a custom for people living along the routes to leave notes, papers, communications, etc., from one another in the mail boxes, so that their neighbors can get them when they wish. An Indiana rural route carrier confiscated a few of these which he found in the boxes and sent them to Washington for advice from the government. The route patrons got together and hired an attorney to see what could be done about the matter. They contended that in as much as the farmers bought their boxes themselves, the boxes were their own private property and they might do as they chose about the matter. The government, however, decided differently, and told them that all matter deposited in those boxes must bear regular postage rates and they were classed simply as boxes rented at a postoffice are classed. The action of the carrier in confiscating the matter found in the boxes was sustained.

NOTICE.

D. Ford & Co.,
for Judgment.
Local option election in Hartford, Kentucky.

This cause coming on to be heard and it appearing that at the regular term of this Court on March 6, 1905, D. Ford and 61 others filed their petition herein praying an order of this Court directing an election to be held in Hartford, Ky., on May 9th, 1905, for the purpose of taking the sense of the legal voters upon the proposition whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold, bartered or loaned in the said City of Hartford, or whether or not the law now in force in said City allowing the sale of spirituous, vinous and malt liquors shall become inoperative in said city of Hartford, and it appearing that said petition is and was the time filed, signed by legal voters of said City in number greater than 25 per cent. of the votes cast in said city at the last general election preceding the date of filing said petition; and it appearing further that said petitioners have deposited with the Judge of this Court the sum of $60.00, which is sufficient to pay the expenses of holding said election; it is therefore ordered and adjudged that an election will be held in the said City of Hartford, a City of the fifth class on the 9th day of May, 1905, for the purpose of taking the sense of the legal voters of said City upon the proposition whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold, bartered or loaned in the City of Hartford, or whether or not the law now in force in said City allowing the sale of spirituous, vinous and malt liquors shall become inoperative in the said City of Hartford. The clerk of Ohio County Court, is ordered and directed to prepare ballots to be used at said election as required by law, and the Sheriff of Ohio County is ordered and directed to hold said election and to open a poll in each voting place in the said City of Hartford on the 9th day of May, 1905, for the purpose of carrying out this order.

It is further ordered and adjudged that a special registration be held on Tuesday April 25, 1905, for all legal voters of said City, who have not registered. The regular election officers in the voting precincts in which any part of the said City of Hartford is included will conduct said registration as required by law. The Sheriff of Ohio County is directed to have this order published in some weekly newspaper published in Ohio county for at least two weeks before the date of election, and also by written or printed notices in each voting precinct for same length of time and this proceeding is continued.

A copy attested:

LIVE A HUNDRED YEARS.

Diet Prescribed by a Chicago Doctor for Members of a Health Club.

By following these precepts which Dr. J. B. S. King submitted to the Natural Health Club, you may live to be one hundred years old.

For a sudden strong effort of severe trial eat meat.
For a long-continued effort for endurance eat cereals.

After exhausting mental labor eat yolk of eggs.

After exhausting physical labor drink infused tea.

For a pure brain stimulant drink coffee.

For paleness eat lean meat and spinach.

To make gray brain matter eat eggs, beans and oats.

For sound sleep eat onions and garlic.

"The first thirty-three years of man's life is for growth," he declared. "The breastbone, which until the thirty-third year is composed of three bones, then consolidates into one, ending the growing period. The next thirty-three years is for the enjoyment of fruits of labor."

"Many people who get stout at their fortieth year think they are in fine shape. Mistaken idea. Stoutness at forty is a sign of old age as much as gray hair. When it is noticed, the diet should be cut down one-third. The ideal old age is to be lean, spare and active. Old age loves fat, while youth detests it."

"Oats for children and Indian corn for adults is almost perfect food. Meat is the only food for a severe effort. Too much meat, however, causes bad temper. The nearest approach to a perfect brain stimulant is coffee."

Court Milked the Cow.

"The court will proceed to milk the cow and judicial notice of those facts which to him as an expert milker will tend to determine whether she has been fresh for a long or short time."

So announced Judge John F. Walker, of Sioux City, Ia., from the bench after hearing witnesses dispute for an hour concerning the identity of a Jersey cow. Both sides claimed her, but one side contended that she had been fresh only three months, while the other alleges she had not been fresh for nearly a year.

The court adjourned to a stable near by, where His Honor proceeded to milk the cow in true farmer fashion. "The verdict of the court is that the cow has not been fresh over three months, therefore she goes to the plaintiff," was the announcement of the bench after the court had solemnly led the procession back to the court house.

Held Trial by Telephone.

Robert Willard, a farmer living near Elkhart, in Logan county, upon being arrested by Constable Pettit on a charge of intoxication and disorderly conduct, pleaded guilty by telephone. When he was informed of the $14 fine by the Justice in London he agreed to send the amount by mail. The case is unique in Central Illinois jurisprudence.

Constable Pettit was sent down by the Lincoln Court to serve a warrant. He found Willard busily engaged in a corn field and read the warrant to him. Willard agreed that it was all right, but pointed to the work he was doing and declared that he could not possibly lose a day or two by driving into Lincoln and waiting for a trial.

He suggested the use of the telephone, and when the Constable somewhat dubiously acquiesced the two retired to the farm house. Finally they got connection with Justice Rudolph, in Lincoln, and over the wire the unique trial was held. The next day the Justice received a letter with the money inclosed.

Nothing can ever surpass it.

MANY COUNTERFEITS.

Chinese Flooding Philippines With Spurious Currency.

(Washington Cor. New York Tribune.)
John E. Wilkie, Chief of the Secret Service Bureau, will go to aid the authorities of the Philippine Islands in ferreting out and punishing a gang of counterfeiters which has been flourishing there ever since the American occupation of the archipelago. It is supposed that the same aggregation of money makers was employed in duplicating the old Spanish currency long before the fall of Manila for clever counterfeiters were discovered by the Americans long before that date. The counterfeiters are known to be Chinese, but whether they have their mint in some secluded place on one of the Islands or in Hongkong the Philippine Secret Service Detectives have not yet been able to determine.

The operations of the Chinese counterfeiters threaten to become a serious menace to the prosperity of the business men of the Philippines, because of the wholesale output of their factories. Their coins are of three kinds: First, old copper Spanish coins plated and passed as silver; second, "Mex" silver coins changed to imitate United States currency; third "Mex" coins altered to simulate the new currency of the Islands, which has recently been put into circulation. The silvered copper coins are of comparatively little importance. They are principally centavos, and are passed, when plated, as quarters. It is the counterfeiting of the new Philippine coins, and the United States currency from Mexican silver coins, which is worrying the authorities. The "Mex" halves and dollars are worth about half as much as our money, although they contain about the same amount of silver. By changing the design to imitate the American or Philippine coins, or melting up the silver remolding it in the new coinage, the counterfeiters realize about 100 per cent profit on the counterfeit American coins and the difference between the price of silver bullion and the established value of the Philippine coin on the Philippine counterfeits, and at the same time produce a coin which has all the weight and ring of the genuine. Several hundred of the various kinds of counterfeiters have been received at the Treasury Department and turned over to the Secret Service Department. Chief Wilkie will sail from San Francisco on the steamship Cretan May 3. On the way to the Philippines he will stop at Honolulu and establish a branch of the bureau there for the Hawaiian Territorial Government.

Frank Branigan, Treasurer of the Philippine Islands, who is now on leave in Washington, encountered a great many of the counterfeiters before he left the Philippines for the United States, in November. Mr. Branigan said:

"The Chinese counterfeiters are very clever, indeed, because in this work, like all other kinds of imitation that they attempt, they follow copy with marvelous precision. You have heard the story probably of the Chinaman who was told to copy a certain document, and hands back the two pieces of paper to the man from whom he had received them with every blot, every crease and every curlycue of the original upon the duplicate. It did not take the Chinese very long to discover that counterfeiting was the most profitable class of imitation and they went into the business in a wholesale way they must have paid them handsomely. The counterfeiters have put out a lot of coins that even the money changers at the banks have the greatest difficulty in detecting.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surface of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo Ohio.

UNIQUE OPERATION.

Blood of Healthy Girl Transferred Into Sister's Veins.

(New York World.)

Twice Rose Martin gave of her blood in futile attempts to save the life of her sister, Delia, yesterday. Brave Rose, who is 19 years old, was willing that the physicians should try the third time to transfer her blood into her dying sister's veins. But Rose became so weak that the doctors refused to attempt the operation again.

Delia Martin was found unconscious Monday morning in Mrs. C. C. Thompson's home, No. 297 Roseville avenue, Newark, where she was employed. The young woman had accidentally inhaled illuminating gas. She was taken to the City Hospital where, instead of rallying under the usual treatment, she grew weaker and weaker. As a last resort the physicians determined to stimulate her and re-vivify her blood with that of a person in perfect health.

Rose, a splendid donor for the operation, joyfully presented herself for it. Briefly the instrument for the transfusion of blood consists of two little syringes connected by a glass tube and a small pump to propel the blood through the tube.

The doctors made a minute incision in the large vein in Rose's forearm, near the elbow, and inserted a syringe in the vein. The other syringe was introduced through a like incision in the big vein in Delia's arm.

Rose's blood was drawn into the syringe, squirted into the tube, quickly pumped along it and drawn into the other syringe preparatory to being injected into Delia's veins. But the doctor found that the tube's temperature was less than that of Rose's body so that, even in its brief passage through the tube, little clots had formed in the blood.

The loss of blood, her emotion, her anxiety for her sister had visibly affected Rose. But when the physicians told her the attempt had failed she insisted that they repeat it. The instrument was prepared again and once more Rose's blood was drawn and pumped into the tube.

This time, in some way, air had entered the syringe and minute bubbles were seen in the blood as it traversed the glass tube. Their presence instantly vitiated the operation. For air, injected into Delia's vein, would have been quickly fatal when it reached her heart.

After the second trial Rose was pale, faint but brave and loving as ever.

"Try again," she pleaded. "Anything, anything to keep Delia with me."

The doctor feared Rose would go into collapse and abandoned the operation. Dr. Sutphin, who was in charge of it, congratulated Rose on her sisterly devotion.

No other perfectly healthy person was available who was willing to be donor.
